

What We Do

Our approach to learning is simple. Let them grow.

At Lonestar Autism Solutions, we see potential in every child. With methods grounded in Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) research, we teach our learners important skills they need to succeed at every stage of development. These methods are based on using motivation and positive reinforcement to direct the child's efforts toward adaptive abilities and behaviors.

What is ABA?

Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) is a scientific, research-based discipline that has shown to be the most effective intervention for individuals diagnosed with Autism and Developmental Disabilities. ABA is not a recipe that can be applied the same way to each child. Rather, it is a set of procedures that guide our teaching and allow us to assess and shape the specific behaviors of each individual.

Individualized Programs

Upon entering our program, an individualized ABA program will be designed for your child based on a validated assessment tool. Your child's program will combine both the goals you identify in an in-depth intake meeting and the goals our assessment indicate are needed in order for your child to succeed. Programs are then monitored and revised as needed in order to encourage the highest rate of skill acquisition possible.

Areas addressed may include:

- self-help and daily living skills
- communication
- replacement/problem behaviors
- play and social skills
- pre-academic and school readiness

We understand that one program does not fit all. That is why we offer tailored programming that can be designed to meet your child's needs.
